Share why the removal of all state tests and capping any use of formative, student learning goals, school, teacher or district assessment at 20% is critical.

If we are not successful in getting AB 320 passed, all educators will be subjected to using state data for 40% as the percentage used for student outcomes.

The Teachers and Leaders Council has recently passed recommendations that include the removal of all state tests and capped any use of formative, student learning goals, school, teacher or district assessment at 20%. This ensures that educators would only be responsible for the students they directly work with and have a say in where they want to support their own professional practice.
