Executive Summary

- This report covers four important assets for a region: human capital, financial capital, workforce, and industrial base.
- Human capital includes assets such as education, public health, career centers, entrepreneurship education programs, university entrepreneurship programs, and research and development.
- Financial capital includes assets such as venture capital, angel investors, commercial banks, certified development corporations, government loan programs and philanthropic organizations.
- Workforce is related to the regional labor market and includes information on population and demography of the region, regional economy and educational attainment.
- Industrial base is structured around major employers, business associations and economic development organizations.

Human Capital

- There are 527 schools in Clark County offering grades at the PK-12 level. Out of these, 379 (72%) are regular public schools, 84 (16%) are private schools and the remaining 64 (12%) are public charter schools. The largest category (or grade level) is PK-5 with 242 schools that constitute about 46% of the total.
- There are 9 schools in Lincoln County offering grades at the PK-12 level. All are public schools.
- There are 26 schools in Nye County offering grades at the PK-12 level. All but one are public schools.
- The major secondary-level CTE programs in Clark County concern Information and Media Technologies at over 36% of total enrollments, with Skilled Trades a distant second at 11.5%. Culinary Arts, arguably another trade, adds a further 8.5% by itself.
- In Lincoln and Nye Counties the situation is reversed, with Skilled Trades capturing 69% and 48% of secondary-level CTE enrollments, respectively, and Information and Media only 4.7% and 6.7%, respectively. Agricultural CTE topics account for 18% of enrollments in Lincoln County.
- Health Science (common/foundational courses) is a consistently third-ranked secondary-level CTE offering, at ~5% of enrollments across all three Southern Nevada counties.
- Southern Nevada has numerous other educational institutions that focus on certificates, continuing education and programs that offer a way to transition from high school to university. The College of Southern Nevada, a community college, has three Clark County campuses: Charleston, Henderson and North Las Vegas. Great Basin College similarly serves communities in Lincoln and Nye counties through 9 satellite campuses. The three private (for-profit) career colleges are Northwest Career College, Las Vegas College and Carrington College.

- The two higher education institutions in Southern Nevada are University of Nevada, Las Vegas and Nevada State College. University of Nevada, Las Vegas is a Carnegie R1 research university.
- Clark County has 27 cooperative extension programs whereas there are 6 in Nye County and 2 in Lincoln County.
- A recent workforce development survey conducted by the Larson Institute at the University of Nevada, Reno School of Public Health had 77 responses from 58 public health organizations that make up the public health assets in Nevada.
  - 64 out of 77 respondents indicated that they receive some form of (typically federal and/or state) government funding for their operations.
  - 49 out of 77 respondents indicated interest in expanding their “organization’s area of focus to other stages in the workforce pipeline or other health care sectors.” Education was the most popular area for expansion. It was mentioned by 31 of the 49 respondents who were interested in expanding.
  - 46 out of 77 respondents indicated interest in participating in a statewide workgroup that includes a variety of stakeholders involved in Nevada’s health care workforce.
- Career centers help job seekers with unemployment insurance, resume preparation, job search and guidance. There are 4 centers identified in Southern Nevada, three of which are run by Nevada Jobconnect in Las Vegas, North Las Vegas and Henderson.
- There are 3 Entrepreneurship education programs (SCORE Southern Nevada Training, Las Vegas Urban League and Tech Alley) and 2 university entrepreneurship programs (Troesh Center for Entrepreneurship and Innovation and UNLV Office of Economic Development). These are all in Las Vegas.
- There are 58 research centers and labs in Southern Nevada, all located in the University of Nevada, Las Vegas. UNLV is also home to the UNLV Harry Reid Research and Technology Park, which is in Henderson.
- There are 29 organizations in Southern Nevada that provide incubator/accelerator services (and/or co-working spaces) to help small businesses and startups. All but 3 are in Las Vegas. There are 2 in Henderson and 1 in Mesquite.

Financial Capital

- There are 29 venture capital firms that are active in Nevada with 9 located (or having presence) in Las Vegas. 19 of these firms list technology as a focus of their operations.
- There are 60 commercial banks (of bank branches) that are located in Southern Nevada. Unlike venture capital firms and angel investors, commercial banks invest in more traditional, low risk small businesses.
- In addition to venture capital and commercial banks, other organizations that support Nevada workforce through financial capital are angel investors, certified development companies, and government loan programs.
- There are also 54 philanthropic organizations that are based in Southern Nevada. 46 of those are private foundations. The remaining are public or community foundations.

Workforce

- Clark County has one of the highest non-native populations in the nation, at about 22% or 1.5 times the national average. Many of these new immigrants, although eager for work, struggle with math and language skills (English or Spanish).
- Large swathes of old downtown Las Vegas are characterized by tracts of low median age and low median household income. In these tracts, educational attainment is also low.
- Clark County's population is remarkably Balkanized with many cases of dense poor tracts adjacent to sparse better-off tracts, a challenging situation for the public school system.
- Notwithstanding its young and poor downtown section, the median age of the Clark County's population overall increased more than 2 years, to 37.8 years, between the 2010 and 2020 Censuses, implying that concerns of the elderly are increasing relative to those of school-age population.

Industrial Base

- Faced with growing competition from the gaming sector both nationally and internationally, Southern Nevada has recognized it has to diversify its economy. However, with the COVID-19 pandemic, Southern Nevada economy especially Clark County, was greatly impacted.
- In February 2020, Clark County realized its highest seasonally adjusted employment level of 1,056,500 and with administrative closures due to the pandemic, Clark County employment decreased to 759,600 by May 2020.
- With lessening of restrictions from COVID-19, seasonally adjusted employment in Clark County has risen to 1,056,100 by June 2022 which is still 400 employees less than February 2020 levels.
- The Accommodations Sector still is 26,700 below February 2020 non-seasonally adjusted employment levels. Other economic sectors which are below February 2020 levels are the State Government and the Local Government. As of June 2022, State Government is operating at 85% of February 2020 levels (short 3,300 employees) and Local Government, of which public schools are part, is operating at 88% of February 2020 levels (short 8,600 employees).
- Clark County economic sectors realizing gains in employment in June 2022 from February 2020 are the Construction Sector, the Retail Sector, the Professional and Business Services Sector, the Health Care and Social Services Sector, the Manufacturing Sector, the Wholesale Trade Sector, the Financial Services Sector, and the Food Services and Drinking Places Sector.
- Also, the Accommodations Sector, which in February 2020 had the largest proportional share of total county employment, fell to second place in June 2022 to the Professional and Business Service Sector. This shows a potential change in industrial structure of the Clark County economy.
- There are 31 chambers of commerce in Southern Nevada. Las Vegas leads with 21 chambers. The remaining 10 are located in Henderson, Mesquite, Boulder City, Laughlin, Pahrump, Spring Valley, Beatty, Pioche and Overton. Chambers help businesses primarily with networking and can be invaluable to rural communities.

- There are 9 economic development organizations in Southern Nevada. These organizations are public-private partnerships that coordinate and promote economic development activities in different areas. One example is the Las Vegas Global Economic Alliance, which serves communities in Las Vegas, Clark County, Henderson, North Las Vegas, Boulder City and Mesquite.

Introduction

The economy of Southern Nevada (Clark County and Lincoln County and zip codes covering the Nye County community of Pahrump) has witnessed volatility during the last few years. In 1976, with the passage of legalized gaming act in New Jersey and in 1988 the passage of the Indian Gaming Regulatory Act, the once monopoly of legalized gaming for the state of Nevada and its counties was eliminated. Faced with growing competition from the gaming sector both nationally and internationally, the state of Nevada and many of its counties recognized that the state and county economies need to diversify.

The state in 2011 created the Governor's Office of Economic Development (GOED) and its county economic development authorities to focus on diversification and to give Nevada opportunities in the new information economy. It also designated targeted industries for economic development (SRI, 2011). In 2018, GOED released a publication (SRI, 2018) detailing Nevada's progress after the 2008 recession which laid the groundwork for the Las Vegas Global Economic Alliance to update its industry targets (2021).<sup>1</sup> During effort to diversify, the COVID-19 pandemic happened and the state, especially Clark County, was greatly impacted. In February 2020, before administrative closures of economic sectors, Clark County realized its lowest unemployment rate of 3.4%. By April 2020, the unemployment rate rose to 31.1%, its highest ever, then declined to 5.7% in June 2020.

Faced with growing gaming sector competition and the ever-changing information age economy, education leaders in Clark County recognize the importance of a trained workforce and offering opportunities to Southern Nevada residents to obtain these new occupational talents. Also aligning workforce programs with the industry targets of Las Vegas Global Economic Alliance (2021) would greatly impact these economic development efforts. To develop an effective and efficient workforce pipeline, it is first required that an asset map of the workforce pipeline be created. As global competition for innovative firms and people increases, regional asset mapping especially for the regional workforce serves a number of purposes as noted by the Council of Competitiveness (2006):

1. Resource Identification: Mapping allows Southern Nevada's leadership to identify the resources that can be utilized to support workforce initiatives. Too often, visionary economic or workforce development efforts begin without a full understanding of the regional asset base. A mismatch between strategy and assets can severely diminish the potential impact of various workforce initiatives.

2. Foundation for Strategic Planning and Implementation: Asset mapping can either lay the foundation for development of a new strategic plan or enable the realignment of existing workforce efforts. Asset mapping provides insights to identifying gaps, redundancies, and inefficiencies, and thus can help Southern Nevada reallocate resources to address key challenge areas and avoid needless expenditures if high quality assets already exist. The initial asset map provides Southern Nevada with a baseline against which to measure progress over time.

3. Deepened Understanding of Key Regional Systems and Linkages: A comprehensive workforce asset mapping process leads to a deeper understanding of the ways in which Southern Nevada institutions interact with each other and with entities outside of Southern Nevada. With a new perspective on well-established institutions, Southern Nevada community leaders can more accurately assess the institutions' current value to the economy. Southern Nevada leaders can also identify ways in which to strengthen institutions, build linkages between them, and, ultimately, improve the regional innovation system.

4. Catalyst for Partnership: Asset mapping aggregates the knowledge possessed by a few individuals and makes it available to others who may conceive of new ways to leverage the assets. Information from the asset mapping process can help demonstrate to stakeholders that they work within a regional “community.” As leaders see common interests and organizational links, they may be inspired to strengthen or form partnerships. Given the rapid growth in Southern Nevada, partnerships could ensure effective and efficient workforce programs.

5. Motivational Tool for Implementation: The process of creating the asset map can have a positive effect in engaging community members in Southern Nevada development effort. Using the workforce pipeline asset map could motivate Southern Nevada leaders in the implementation phase.

The scope of the Asset Map involves listing the various assets of Southern Nevada. Assets include human capital, financial capital, economic sectors, legal and regulatory environments, physical infrastructure, and quality of life components in Southern Nevada. This asset map publication follows past studies by the US Department of Labor (2005), The Council on Competitiveness (2006), University of North Texas (2007), and the University Center for Economic Development (2021). These asset maps typically include asset details related to human capital (particularly education and workforce training programs), industrial base (major employers and associations), finance (commercial banks and other financial companies), entrepreneurship (support programs by universities, government agencies and private sector), infrastructure (particularly physical infrastructure) and quality of life (amenities).

By developing a comprehensive asset map along with the new targeted industries of Las Vegas Global Alliance and GOED (2021), an effective and efficient economic development program can evolve. A recent policy report by Brookings Mountain West (2022) identifies Nevada’s economy split into three distinct regions (the “three Nevadas”), which are Southern Nevada, Metro Reno-Carson City, and Central Great Basin.<sup>2</sup> Given the weight of the Southern Nevada region in Nevada’s economy, it makes sense to start with an asset map of Southern Nevada that includes Clark County, Lincoln County and Nye County. We will be expanding the asset map to the entire state in Phase 2 of the study.

This report is organized to cover four important assets for a region: human capital, workforce, financial capital and industrial base. Human capital includes assets such as education, public health, career centers, entrepreneurship education programs, university entrepreneurship programs, and research and development. Workforce is related to the regional labor market and includes information on population and demography of the region, regional economy and educational attainment. Financial capital includes assets such as venture capital, angel investors, commercial banks, certified development corporations, government loan programs and philanthropic organizations. Finally, industrial base is structured around major employers, business associations and economic development organizations.

Human Capital

The term human capital refers to the economic value of a worker’s experience and skills. Human capital includes assets like education, training, intelligence, skills, health and other things an employer might value such as loyalty and punctuality. Human capital is the key to success for any regional economy or business particularly in the age of information-based economies. This section includes a description of key human capital elements in the Southern Nevada region beginning with educational system of K-12 public schools, community colleges, colleges and universities and technical schools, continuing/professional education and extension programs are listed. Also, career centers for both business and job seekers and entrepreneurial education programs are presented.

Education

The educational system reflects a region’s readiness to train the workforce of existing and relocating businesses. The Southern Nevada Region is comprised of three school districts providing K-12 education. Community colleges, universities, technical schools, continuing/professional education, and extension programs offer post-secondary opportunities. Career centers and entrepreneurial education programs of education for both businesses and job seekers.

K-12 Education

School districts provide a range of educational programs for students ranging from standard core subjects to vocational education. District populations are served through programs such as English as a Second Language, special education, or advanced placement courses.

Community Colleges

Southern Nevada is served by several community college campus, centers, and satellite areas. Community colleges provide a bridge to those transitioning from high school to a university, as well as a variety of certificates and continuing education programs. College of Southern Nevada has three campuses in Clark County. In Clark County there are three private for profit career colleges and Trade Schools. To serve Nye and Lincoln counties, Great Basin College has a GBC Center in Pahrump Valley. There are satellite campuses in Nye and Lincoln County that county populace can take interactive video classes. Anyone wanting to take an interactive class should contact the Pahrump Valley GBC Center to register for a class.

Continuing/Professional Ed. & Extension Programs

There are a variety of continuing education and extension programs available to the populace in Southern Nevada. These are valuable to Southern Nevada communities as they can provide the Southern Nevada populace with access to recent advancements in their fields and local expertise. Extension offices within Southern Nevada are also listed, followed by programs that are available.

Public Health

Public health is an important asset for any community as it is about disease prevention and improving people’s health. For workforce development in public health, our plan was to use the Public Health Workforce Development Survey that was conducted by the Larson Institute at the University of Nevada, Reno School of Public Health. Data from this statewide survey became available in the middle of June, and it was in raw data form. While more on the survey results and workforce assets in public health will be provided in the Phase 2 of the CCEA study, we are providing a list of the survey respondents which constitute the workforce development assets in public health. We are also describing briefly some of the survey results in this progress report.

Nevada Healthcare Workforce Development Survey was sent to a variety of public health organizations in the state. There were 77 responses to the survey from the organizations listed in Table 12 below. Out of the 77 respondents, 12 were from government agencies, 23 were from higher education institutions, 26 were from nonprofit institutions, 9 were from for profit organizations, and the remaining 7 were from other organizations that were not listed under the previously mentioned groups. It is important to note that all respondents answered “yes” to the question “Does your organization contribute to health care workforce pipeline development through education, training, financial assistance, research, scholarships, or other means?” 64 of these respondents indicated that they receive some form of (typically federal and/or state) government funding for their operations. A good majority (49 out of 77) of the respondents answered “yes” to the question “Are you interested in expanding your organization’s area of focus to other stages in the workforce pipeline or other health care sectors?” For the question about how the respondent would like to expand, the most popular answer was “education,” which was mentioned by 31 of the 49 respondents who were interested in expanding. It is also noteworthy that 46 respondents answered “yes” to the question “Are you interested in participating in a statewide workgroup that brings together stakeholders from public health, behavioral health, primary care, workforce development, K-12 and higher education, minority health and equity, and community-based organizations with the goal of improving, growing, and diversifying Nevada’s health care workforce and workforce pipelines?”

Career Centers

Career centers provide employment support through various programs for both businesses and job seekers, as well as education and training services. Programs supporting job seekers often include assistance with unemployment insurance, resume preparation, assistance searching for jobs, and guidance. These programs can help to reduce unemployment and improve labor situations in an area. Many of these centers are run through Nevada Jobconnect and are present throughout much of the state.

Entrepreneurship Education Programs

There are several programs in Nevada that provide education and training to aspiring and current entrepreneurs and small business owners. These programs can lead to individuals starting more businesses, leading to economic development in an area. While this effect may be indirect, it can still have a real impact on the economy of a community. These programs are available in the Las Vegas and Reno areas, but residents of rural areas have relatively limited access. While we don't have hard data on how all these programs are funded, it is safe to say that a lot of these programs have private financing, donations by families and associations. At the same time, some (particularly those at universities) use public financing (public university resources, grants, etc.).

University Entrepreneurship Programs

Both the University of Nevada, Reno and the University of Nevada, Las Vegas have significant programs to support entrepreneurs, small business, and startups. These programs support business by providing education and training to business leaders through workshops and courses, providing access to capital, and providing research services that support business and economic development. Below is a sample of these programs.

Research and Development

Research and development infrastructure has a remarkable ability to spur the creation of new, innovative business, and to bolster the economy of a region. This is not only represented by research centers and parks, but also by other locations and groups which foster and support innovative environments; these include incubators, accelerators, and shared workspaces. The presence of any of these assets can promote growth and affect several prominent industries.

Research Centers and Labs

Research Centers are programs within a higher education institution which conduct research in a specified field. In terms of economic development, those researching topics within Science, Technology, Engineering, and Mathematics (STEM) are typically considered as the most influential, as these centers lead directly to new technologies and products. The University of Nevada, Reno (UNR) and the University of Nevada, Las Vegas (UNLV), along with the larger Nevada System of Higher Education, have numerous research centers and institutes.

Research Parks

One of the most well-known type of assets for research and development is a research park. These are complexes which contain facilities to conduct various types of technical and scientific research for academic or industry purposes. This is a crucial piece of infrastructure for the development and testing of new products and technologies, and thus can have a large impact on an economy with its presence; research parks are valuable assets to established businesses and entrepreneurs alike. Below is a list of research parks within the state of Nevada, all of which are connected to a university or to the Nevada System of Higher Education.

Incubators/Accelerators/Shared Workspaces

Incubators, accelerators, and shared workspaces are similar institutions, but have a few distinctions. Shared workspaces or offices are mostly just that, they offer a space in which to work and have meetings, but lack services that support the small businesses, startups, and entrepreneurs that work there. Incubators provide these services, as well as mentorship, advice, and support in growing a business. Accelerators focus on promoting more rapid growth and can provide access to capital. Despite the differences, these are all centers that promote and foster innovation in entrepreneurship. Most of these listed in the table below are privately owned and/or financed operations, where entrepreneurs pay a certain fee to receive working space and other services such as mentoring.

The figure below shows the broader entrepreneurship assets in the Greater Las Vegas Area. The assets are broken down as: incubator/accelerator/workspace; venture capital/angel investors; research parks; commercial banks; philanthropic organizations; Chambers of commerce and certified development companies.

Workforce

This section documents the demographic characteristics of the Southern Nevada population, its workforce. A stacked map form is used to accommodate the wide expanse of open-space within the region, which dwarfs the urban core. In the stacked maps, the scale of the Las Vegas Metropolitan area is approximately twice that of Clark County as a whole.

Six maps are included in this section, covering the basics of population size and distribution, economic stage (median age, household income), and educational attainment. The first two maps are made using the most recent 2020 Census data of population. The latter four maps rely on American Community Survey (ACS) data, which is a forecast of the 2020 characteristics indicated from 2010 Census data, as the updates based on 2020 Census data itself have not been released yet.

Population Size and Distribution

Even though the configuration of Census tracts is revised for each decennial census, note the large extents and correspondingly big populations of census tracts outside the core metropolitan area, particularly to West. Statistics are “blurred” in such outsized enumeration units.

In contrast to Figure 1, this map shows that the densest populations occur in the Las Vegas metropolitan core, particularly to the East of the intersection of U.S. Highways 93 and 95. Population concentrations in the affluent, large Western suburb tracts are inconspicuously low.

Note: Data are missing (grey color) for numerous tracts comprising the downtown airport

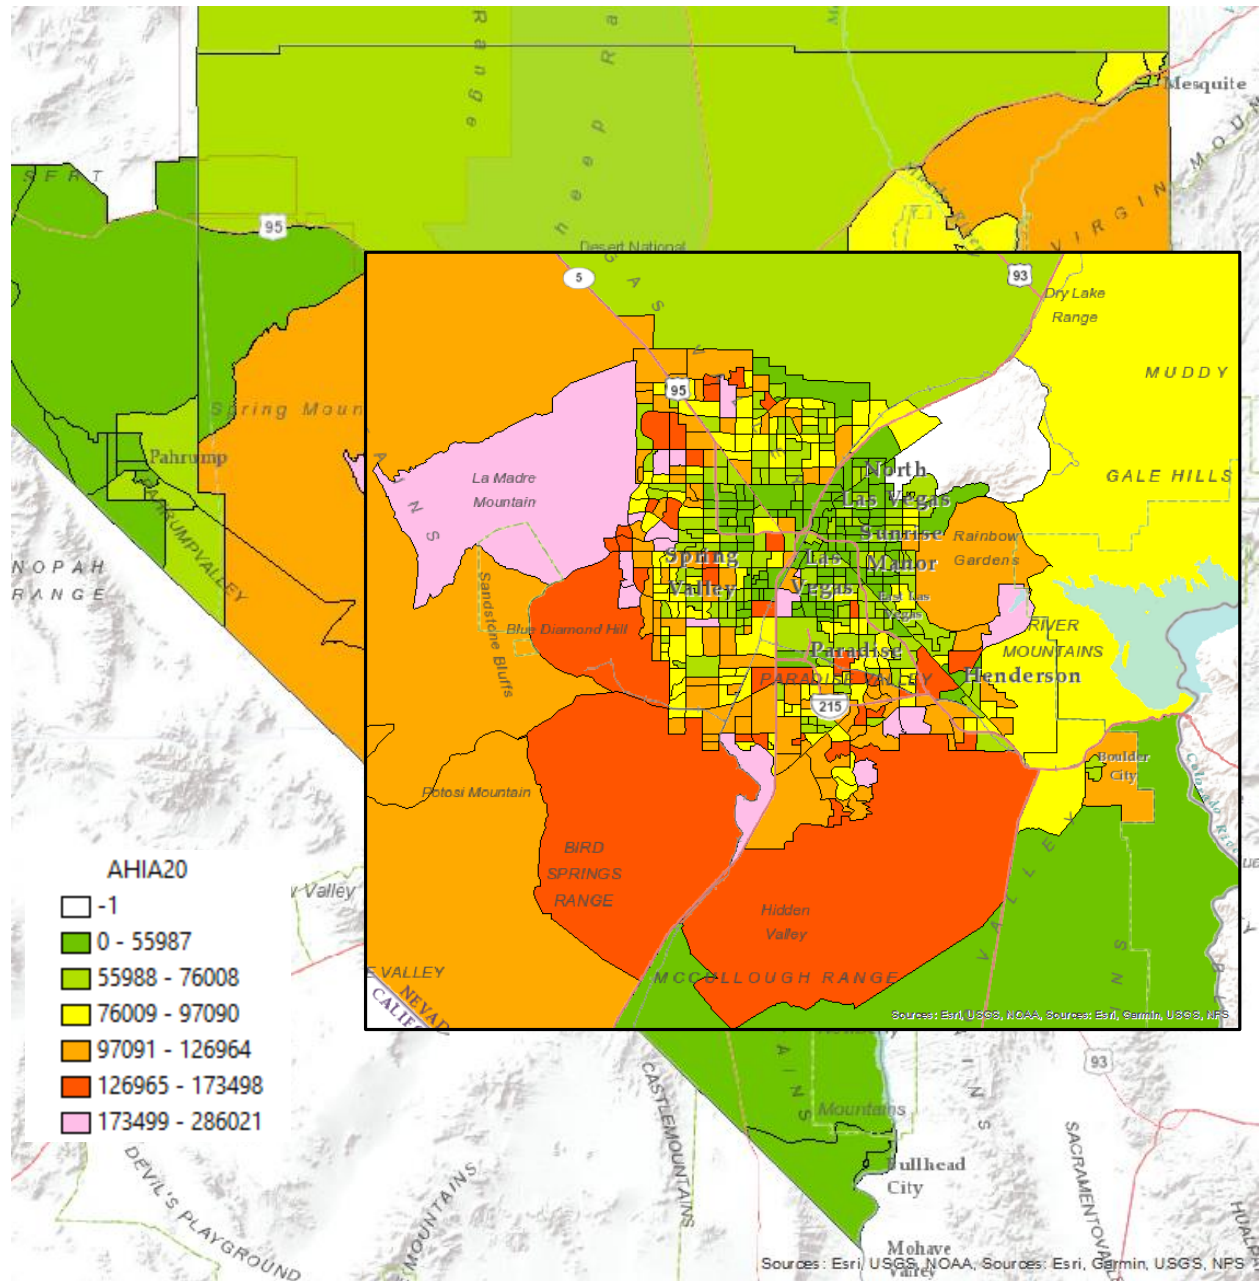

Economic Stage

The urban core is clearly delineated, with youngest population in the Northeast, growing progressively older toward Southern and Western suburbs. With a few notable exceptions (lilac color), the majority of grade-school-age children live in younger families, the majority of high-school-age children in older ones.

The urban core is again clearly visible, with lower income households in the North and East and more affluent ones to the West and particularly to the South. Some exceptions (lilac color) are scattered throughout the region.

Educational Attainment

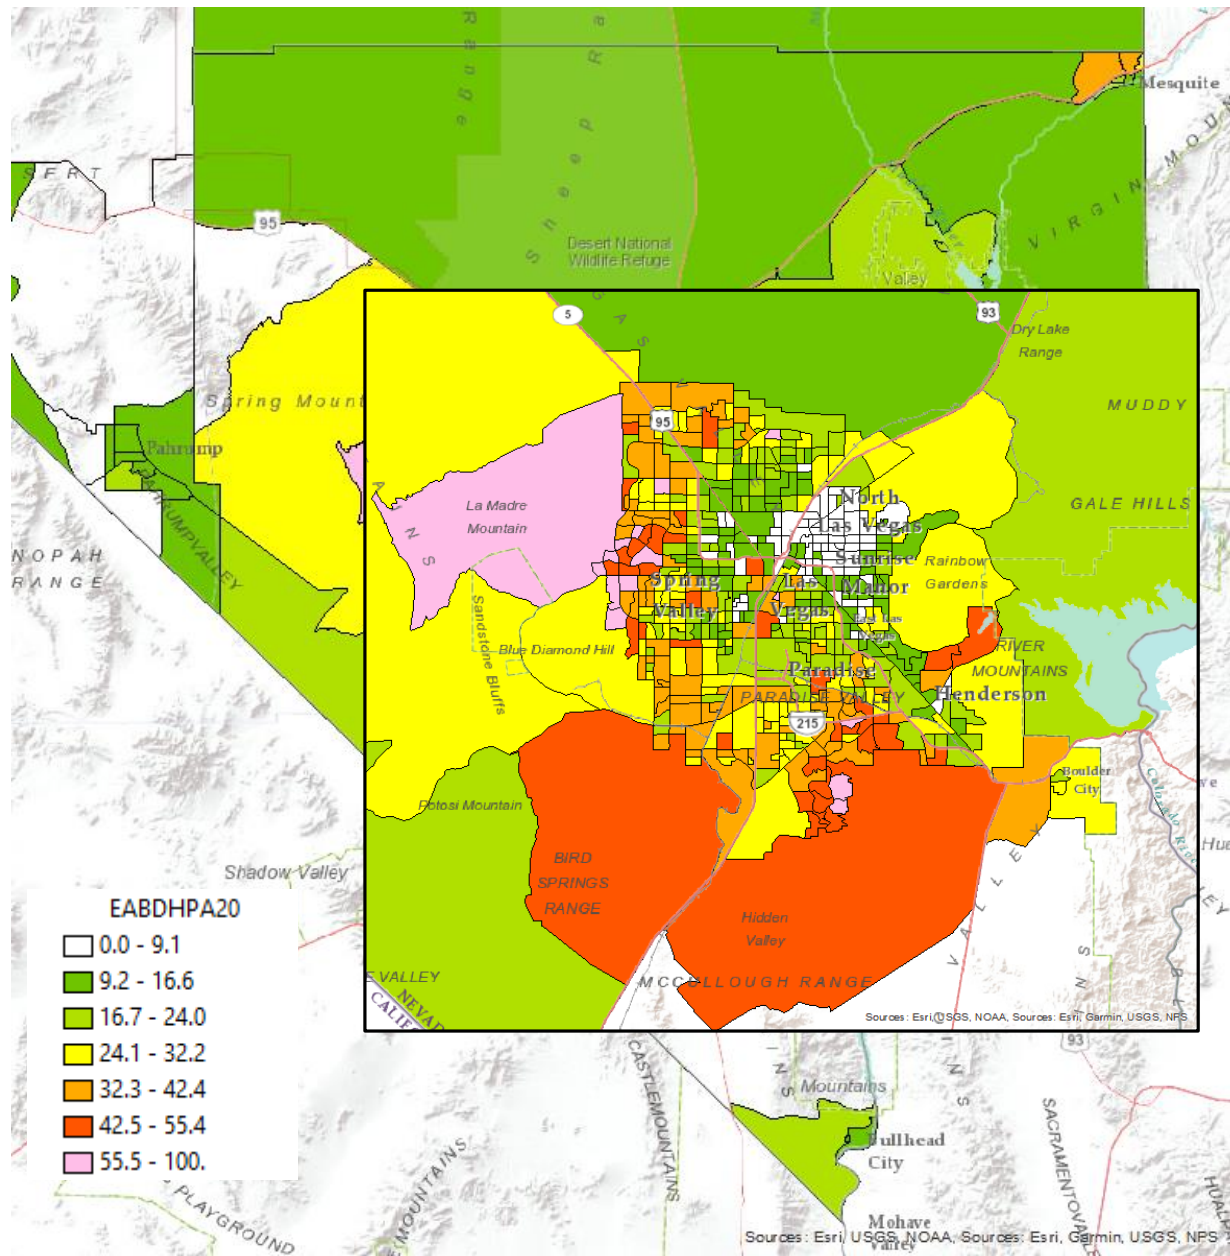

Figure 6. ACS 2020 (5-year) Population per centage with Associates Degree or Higher by Tract

Educational attainment is one of the key factors in both employability and earnings. Once again, the generally poor situation in the urban core and Northeast, progressively improving to the West and South is obvious. Both better living circumstances and work opportunities are found in the suburbs.

Note: Data are missing (grey color) for several tracts in the urban core

Figure 7. ACS 2020 (5-year) Population per centage with bachelor’s degree or Higher by Tract

A four-year degree is typically a threshold for management-level jobs. With just a few exceptions, the highest attainment is in the Western suburbs where the middle-aged families (Figure 3) with the highest-income (Figure 4) and are documented.

Note: Data are missing (grey color) for numerous tracts in the urban core

Demographic Trends

The first table below documents demographic trends in the three Southern Nevada counties, Clark, Lincoln, and Nye (which includes several cities of size similar to Pahrump) over the past decade. The little blue-line graphs, sometimes called “sparklines”, allow quick visualization of growth/decline patterns. Clark County’s population has continued to grow strongly, despite dips in household income and house prices following the Great Recession (2008-2010); the senior population has grown most rapidly. By contrast, Lincoln County’s overall population, particularly its young population has declined, even as household income rose. Nye County presents a mixed case, with the middle and older-age populations in suburbs like Pahrump (and Beatty, outside the study region) offsetting the flight of youth.

The second table below provides a numerical view of trends in Clark County specifically over the past ten years. Data for 2010 and 2020 come from those Censuses, the midpoint year 2015 is estimated from projections of 2010 Census data. The demographic shift to older age brackets is evident. Of significance concern the declining levels of bachelor’s degree attainment and Labor Force participation.

It is noteworthy Clark County has one of the highest non-native populations in the United States: it is a county of new immigrants, particularly of Asians, Blacks, and Hispanics.

Basic literacy and numeracy are constraints on successful employment, particularly for new immigrants, and for their children in future. As of 2020, 27% of adults in Clark County lack sufficient language skills to be considered functionally literate in a job setting, vs. 22% for the U.S. overall. Similarly, as of 2020, 39% of adults in Clark County lack sufficient math skills to be considered functionally numerate, vs. 32% for the U.S. overall. (NCES n.d.).

Financial Capital

Any region hoping to spur economic development and entrepreneurship will require capital to do so. As such, access to capital is paramount. Nevada contains and has access to a broad variety of funding programs and capital providing institutions, either within the state or within the broader region. In this section, venture capital and angel investor firms, commercial banks, philanthropic organizations, community development corporations, government programs, and other miscellaneous funding avenues will be detailed and listed below. Note that some of the lists given are not comprehensive but represent a subset of the total information collected.

Venture Capital

Venture capital firms provide capital through investment to small companies with a high growth potential using a pool of money supplied through investors in the firm. These companies are commonly within the field of technology, but each firm has its own targeted sector which it seeks to fund. There is a plethora of these firms in Nevada and the surrounding states, with many located in the San Francisco area.

Angel Investors

Angel investor groups, similarly, to venture capital firms, invest in small, high growth potential companies, however, this capital is given by the members of the groups themselves rather than outside investors. Angel investment groups also differ by offering investment at earlier stages of a company than venture capital firms. Generally, these groups invest in technology companies and products, with different focuses on sectors within technology. There are many of these groups in Nevada and the surround states.

Commercial Banks

Commercial banks, rather than the high-risk investments of venture capital firms and angel investment groups, invest in more traditional and low-risk small businesses. Many commercial banks supply loans to small businesses as part of a program through the Small Business Administration, called 7a loans. These loans can be used for a variety of purposes, including purchasing capital and supplies, and have a maximum amount of $5,000,000. There are many commercial banks both in Nevada and the surrounding states that serve Nevada.

Certified Development Company

A certified development company works in conjunction with the Small Business Administration to promote economic development in a region by providing loans. Specifically, these corporations offer SBA 504 loans, which can be used to support the expansion of a business through purchasing real estate or machinery that will be used for an extended period. These loans specifically prohibit its use for investment in real estate or for short term inventory and tools. As such, these loans are solely used to grow businesses, not to maintain their operations.

Government and Other Loan Programs

Outside of investments through venture capital firms, banks, and philanthropic organizations, there are a variety of programs, loans, and grants available through the Federal and State Government, Community Development Financial Institutions (CDFIs), and other groups. Various agencies and departments within government, including the Department of Treasury, the Department of Agriculture, and the Small Business Administration offer capital and loan programs to small business. In addition, CDFIs are firms that offer investment in cooperation with the government to support disadvantaged communities' economic development. In recent years, online firms that offer microloans to small businesses have also emerged as a potential source for capital.

Industrial Base

Major Employers

This section looks at the industrial base in the Southern Nevada economy and how it is changing. Industrial base can be defined as the economic sectors with the greatest number of jobs in a regional or local economy. For Clark County, Current Employment Statistics will be used to investigate the county's industrial base. For this analysis, changes in industrial base will be analyzed from February 2020 before the COVID-19 administrative closures to the most recent CES data of June 2022. CES produces two sets of employment data. Seasonally adjusted and non-seasonally adjusted data. Seasonally adjusted data eliminates the changes in employment attributable to normal variations and makes it possible to observe cyclical and other nonseasonal movements in the data. However, for employment by economic sector, Clark County CES data is only in seasonally non-adjusted values. For Clark County, total non-adjusted employment in February 2020 was 1,049,700 which is 4,700 employees higher than employment figure of 1,054,400 in June 2022. If one looks at seasonally adjusted figures, employment for Clark County in February 2020 was estimated to be 1,056,500 while in June 2022 seasonally adjusted employment was 1,056,100. For seasonally adjusted employment, employment in February 2020 was 400 employees more than seasonally adjusted employment in June 2022.

Table 27 shows the non-adjusted economic sectoral employment distribution of Clark County employment for February 2020 and June 2022. Non-adjusted employment from February 2020 to June 2022 has increased by 4,700 employees. However, the distribution of employment has changed. The Accommodations Sector which encompasses the casino industry has realized a loss of 26,800 jobs from February 2020 to June 2022. It's share of total Clark County employment has decreased from 15.40% in February 2020 which was the largest of any sector in Clark County to 12.79% in June 2022 which ranks this sector second highest behind the Professional and Business Services Sector. Also, the State Government Sector which faculty and staff at UNLV are part has realized an employment decrease of 3,300 jobs. The Local Government Sector which house Clark County public education employees has decreased by 8,600 employees from February 2020 to June 2022. As seen the distributional impacts of COVID-19 has not been proportional and has changed the industrial base structure of the Clark County economy.

For Lincoln County and the community of Pahrump, there are no Current Employment Statistics published for these entities. Therefore, using secondary data from Statistics from Data Axis provided by the Nevada Department of Employment, Rehabilitation, and Rehabilitation was used to estimate the major employers in these rural areas. As for Lincoln County, the hospital is the largest employer which is not too unusual for rural counties. Ten private firms are among the largest employers while the government sector has twelve sectors as the largest employers. Again, not unusual for rural economies. For Nye County where Pahrump is located of the 20 largest employers, fifteen are located in Pahrump.

Business Organizations

Chambers of commerce connect businesses in a community, whether that is a physical area or identity, together in a single organization. This can promote collaboration between companies, inform members of available resources, and can promote business interests through lobbying of local leaders. In rural communities, these organizations can be invaluable to an area and be an influential presence in the area's culture and business. The list below is a sample of some of the largest chambers of commerce in Nevada by number of active members.

Economic Development Organizations

Economic development organizations provide support promote economic growth within an area. This can include supporting existing companies operating in the local area and new businesses, as well as attempting to attract other established businesses. These organizations can have a noticeable impact on the wellbeing and status of a region's economy. One particular example of the impact these organizations can have is the attraction of the Tesla Gigafactory to the Reno area by the Economic Development Authority of Western Nevada (EDAWN), which led to the creation of new jobs in the area and bolstered the manufacturing sector in the region.

Conclusion

With global competition for innovative firms and workers, regional asset mapping aids in the development of effective and efficient workforce programs. Mapping allows educational leaders to identify resources that can be utilized to support ongoing and future workforce initiatives. Often, visionary workforce programs are initiated without a full understanding of regional workforce base assets. A mismatch may occur between strategies and assets which would diminish the potential impacts of regional workforce initiatives.

This publication identifies and catalogs all major assets related to development of regional workforce programs. Southern Nevada needs to know what it has to work with, supplement, and/or change in order to formalize an effective and efficient workforce initiative. This publication would assist Southern Nevada leaders in the evaluation of on-going workforce programs and create workforce programs to meet current and future workforce demands.
